

Legal Language for Property Owners

Laura Connerly, Ph.D.

Legal terms are used often in conversation and on radio and television programs. Though you may be acquainted with the words, it is the meaning that counts.

In buying, selling or willing property, either real or personal, legal terms are brought into use. Knowing some of the important ones can help in communications between the buyer and seller.

The language used in describing these transactions includes the following common legal terms:

Abstract of Title – A legal form giving a condensed history of the property. Ask to see it before you buy property. Previous owners, prices paid and any encumbrances against the property are listed.

Amortization – Paying off a loan by regular installments.

Appraisal – An estimate, often conservative, of the worth of the property based on market value.

Certificate of Title – A document usually provided by a title company or attorney which certifies current ownership of a piece of property.

Closing Costs – Sometimes called settlement costs, these are in addition to the cost of the house.

Contract – A promissory agreement between two or more persons that creates, modifies or destroys a legal relation.

Deed – The document that conveys the title from one owner to another.

Earnest Money – Deposit money paid by the buyer to indicate that he is serious about wanting to buy. The amount may vary.

Easement Rights – The right an owner gives a person or company to use the property in a specified way. For example, a neighbor may be given the right to use a driveway.

Escrow – Money given a third party may be held in escrow for payment of conditions to be met, for example, to complete work on the house or yard. Money for taxes may also be held in escrow.

Mortgage – The written agreement pledging property to a creditor for a loan.

Mortgagee – Is the person to whom the property is mortgaged and who has loaned the money.

Mortgagor – Is the person who makes the pledge and is receiving the money.

Originally, "will" related to real property; "testament" to personal property; but at the present time, "will" is equally applicable to real and personal property.

For example, "I give my estate in equal shares to my son A and to my grandsons C, D and E (the sons of my deceased son B) per capita." C, D and E take as individuals (not as the sons of B), each taking the same share as A, namely, one-fourth of the estate.

Personal Property – Tangible property such as clothing, furniture and automobiles; and intangible property such as stocks, bonds, life insurance and bank accounts.

Tenancy-by-the-Entirety – A type of joint tenancy between husband and wife which is recognized in some states, including Arkansas. This type of ownership is characterized by the fact that neither party can sever the joint-tenancy relationship. Upon the death of one spouse, the survivor acquires title to the property.

Tenancy-in-Common – A type of property ownership in which two or more persons hold undivided interests in the same land with no right of survivorship. However, each tenant-in common can sell or divide his share.

The owner names person(s) to inherit the securities upon his or her death and title transfers avoid probate. Security means a share, participation or other interest in real or personal property, a business, an enterprise obligation or other issuer and includes both certified and uncertified securities or security accounts. A POD designation avoids probate for bank accounts and government bonds. To create a POD designation, you name person(s) on the ownership document, such as on the registration card for a bank account, to inherit the property at your death. In both TOD and POD designations, owner(s) retain complete control of the property while living and can change beneficiary designations at any time.

Trust – An arrangement made during life or under the terms of a will by which a property interest, real or personal, is held by one person for the benefit of another.

Trustee – A person or institution holding and administering property in trust.

Trustor – A person who makes or creates a trust. Also known as the grantor or settlor.

Will – A legal declaration of the manner in which a testator wishes to distribute her estate after death.

Just as one grain of sand does not make a beach, knowing the meaning of a list of legal terms does not make one a lawyer. Recognizing some of the implications of these legal terms should sharpen one's awareness of the complications of the family's legal affairs.
